At the direction of the Coroner, Cash was taken, still in rull uniform, to the county last at winter Plains, where he was locked up on a charge of murder.

Before leaving he said to the Coroner that the reason he shot Cleary was that the latter had insuited him. Then he added beast ully; "I am a good shot. I have been practising at absorting bottles for weeks past."

Cash then surrendered his pistol to Coroner Prows.

Cash's statement to the Coroner is regarded here as an indication that he was preparing himself for any possible trouble at last night's election, and that he intended to be ready for election, and that he intended to be ready for any emergency.

Friends of Cleary insist that the remark will go far towards proving that Cash's shooting of Cleary was premeditated. The real cause of the encounter was said this morning to have been a desire on the part of the fathers of each to secure the con-tracts, or the work of improving the high-says authorized by last night's election.

A readent of Williamsbridge gives another version of the shooting. He says that during the election, James Cleary's father, Patrick Cleary, got into an altercation with Police Officer Patrick Cash about 11.30 o'clock. The trouble arose over the political differences between the two families.

According to this informant, Cash was gruing the worst of the argument with Patrick Cleary, Cash remembered that he was Chief of Police, in uniform and on duty, and undertook to arrest Patrick Cleary.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 27.—
Police Officer Cash was seen in the White Plains Jail this morning by a reporter. His face was cut and bloody. His uniform was dusty, and showed signs of a struggle, and he presented the appearance of a man who had been drinking heavily. Aside from the bruises his face was swollen.

Cash's cut and bloody face bears out the assertion that he got into an alteration with James Cleary regarding the arrest of Cleary's father, and that during the fight he received the cuts and bruises upon his face.
